

Weill Cornell Office of CME Policy on Non-Compliance for WCM CME Activities

When an activity has been deemed to be in non-compliance with ACCME or Weill Cornell guidelines governing CME as determined by the Office of Continuing Medical Education (OCME) or the CME Committee, this activity may be placed on probation for a period to be determined on a case by case basis.

For Regularly Scheduled Series (RSS's) this period of probation will last for a minimum of three months and will require monthly submission of data for review by the OCME. During this probationary period, CME Credit may be offered only with the approval of the CME committee. At the end of a probationary period, an activity will either be approved for CME credit, have its probation extended, or denied CME credit.

For One Time Activities that have taken place, probation may include a need to obtain additional data from participants or faculty within a specified time period. Depending upon the OCME's review of these data, CME credit may need to be augmented or rescinded.
